60 Years Ago

The former Stoppani property on the bay in Bayport, then owned by Stephen P. Cox, had been sold to John J. O'Conner, who was occupying a cottage at Cedarshore. 1919

Edward Sedlacek of Bohemia had returned from overseas. Anton Thuma and Otto Jost were the only boys from the village who were still on the other side.

The first chamber of the Dutch Parliament had adopted a motion to introduce woman suffrage in Holland.

A 50-hour week had been put into effect at Fahys watchcase factory in Sag Harbor.

Michael Manton had been reappointed postmaster of Sayville.

Bohemia cigar makers were on strike for higher wages.

The News said, "Seven local people yesterday for the first time tried a new thrill when they went up in an aeroplane and flew over the village. Arrangements with the pilot were made by G. Elliot Morrison. Rates were at the accepted rate of a dollar a minute.

50 Years Ago

George Brooks, night watchman for the John J. Mead Co., had received from the Chamber of Commerce a reward of $100 for capturing a thief rifling a safe in the Mead Co. offices.

The causeway to Jones Beach on which the state had been at work for a year was about to be opened, as was the first of the bathing pavilions.

40 Years Ago

Application had been made to have Peace Haven, the former Vanderbilt mansion at Oakdale, then maintained as a retreat for Rosicrucians, removed from the tax rolls. It was assessed at $125,000.
