on North Main Street for use as their barracks.

The following new classes were being given in the local school: algebra, physical geography, rhetoric, Greek history and American selections.

American selections.

W. J. Terry and Sons were selling 1897 model Waverly bicycles for $80.

70 Years Ago

The News said in its Bayport Column, "The streets of the village have been kept lively by pleasure seekers taking advantage of the longest period of sleighing that has been granted them for several winters. Ice men are rejoicing over the continuing cold weather and are taking advantage of the opportunity to harvest as full a crop as possible before the spell is broken. The ice is not as heavy as could be wished but the quality is good. At any rate the outlook for the coming summer is better than it was a year ago and ice users do not intend to be caught."

The Pearl Howe property (now the sit an Heinlein's had been sold by Mr. and Wrs. Emory Skinner to Stenger and Rohm, machinists, for $7,000. A machine shop and garage was to be built on part of the property.

J. W. Schwab, Sayville cigar manufacturer, had been appointed Overseer of the Poor to succeed William Allmendinger, who died suddenly at the age of 42.

A road commission had decided in favor of the proposed new road, to be called Henry Street, between Lincoln and Lakeland Avenues.
