HISTORICAL AND ARCHITECTURAL IMPORTANCE: This Queen Anne style house retains much of its original detail, i.e., vergeboards, brackets, and porch. Above the porch, at the center bay, there is a balcony with a sweeping roof and geometrical balustrade. The second story also has projections to the sides — a polygonal bay on the south side, and a square bay on the north. The windows are rectangular, with twin windows on either side of the second story balcony. The front door is double leafed and panelled. There are two symmetrically placed corbelled chimneys; the foundation is brick. The house belonged to the Hungerfords of the Hungerford Copper Company.
