20. HISTORICAL AND ARCHITECTURAL IMPORTANCE:

This unusual house, built of cypress and designed in the Modernist idiom, is reached by a long angled driveway. The large property consists of a carefully landscaped acreage that was designed circa 1917 for Mr. Havemeyer's father, Horace Havemeyer, by the Olmstead firm. The grounds were laid out to resemble an English country park.

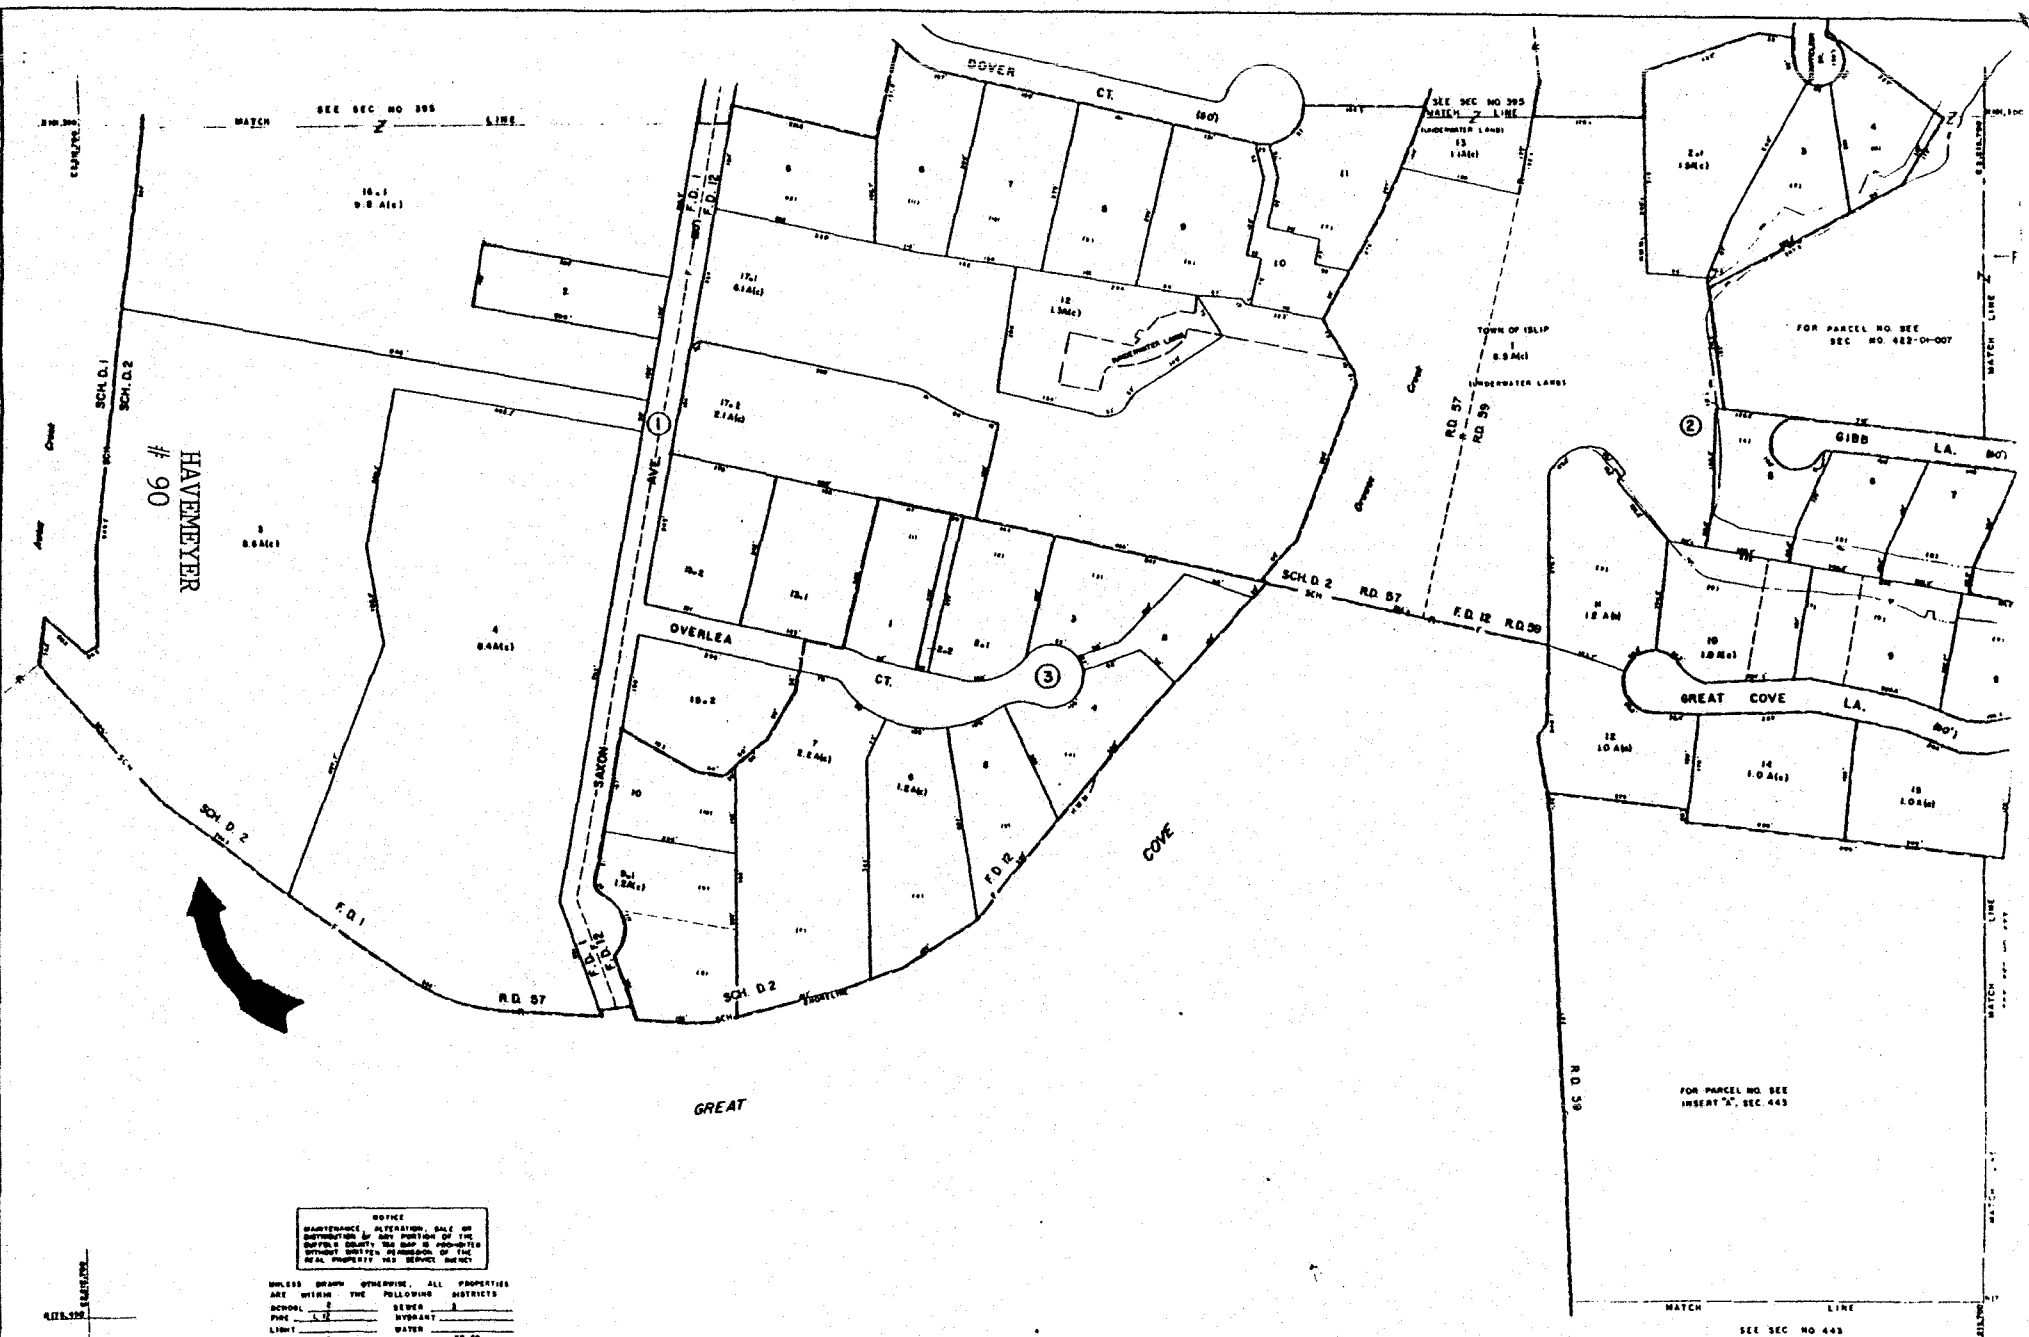

The site of Mr. Horace Havemeyer's house was at the southeast corner of the property. It was replaced by the present house of Mr. Havemeyer's daughter.

In 1888 and 1902 this was the site of the Olympic Club.
